

News & Insights

Janet Stiven to be Panelist at World Services Group Latin American Regional Meeting

Will Address Protection of Client Privileged Information Using Cloud Technology

March 5, 2013

Janet A. Stiven, a Chicago-based business attorney and Dykema Member whose practice focuses on strategic business and technology transactions in the medical device, hospitality and automotive sectors, will participate in a panel discussion – “Document Management Systems and Data Security in Professional Services Firms” – at the World Services Group Latin American Regional Meeting in Santiago, Chile on Monday, March 18.

Stiven will focus her remarks on the risks/benefits of using SaaS (software as a service) and other Cloud services in connection with document management systems. Stiven plans to discuss the various legal considerations and frequently negotiated Cloud contract terms—among them, data security and privacy, lock-in and exit, data integrity and disaster recovery—that lawyers need to understand fully before negotiating agreements for Cloud-based services.

World Services Group (WSG) is a global membership network whose 130 member firms are among the top providers of professional business services in the U.S. and 115 other countries across the globe. Dykema has been an active WSG member for more than a decade and Dykema attorneys continue to demonstrate their leadership within the organization. Dykema is the exclusive WSG Michigan member and enjoys a similar standing in three other WSG jurisdictions in the United States: California, Illinois and Washington, D.C.

While the Latin American Regional Meeting is open only to members of the World Services Group, if you'd like to learn more about this global organization, we invite you to click here.

Practice Areas

Business Services

Privacy and Data Security