

News & Insights

Dykema Appellate Team Win on Behalf of Air Park Estates Homeowners Profiled in The Texas Lawbook

Kratovil Says Decision Affirms Sanctity of Individual Property Rights in Texas

April 14, 2014

In its April 12, 2014 edition, The Texas Lawbook, an online news site that focuses on lawyers who represent businesses in litigation, transactional and regulatory matters in Texas, highlights an appellate court win by a Dykema team led by Christopher D. Kratovil, Dallas-based member whose practice focuses on appellate matters. Kratovil was assisted by Christine Nowak, member of Dykema's Litigation Department, also resident in Dallas.

In its article—"Dallas Court Rejects Developer Billingsley's Carrollton Airport Efforts"—The Texas Lawbook covers the unanimous decision by the Dallas Court of Appeals that ruled a real estate developer's plans to shut down a residential air park community in Carrollton, Texas were unconstitutional.

Kratovil believes the 50-page opinion is an important victory not only for the residents of the Air Park Estates community but for "homeowners throughout the state," and is likely to be cited in future land-grab actions.

To read this article in its entirety, click here.

Attorneys

Christopher D. Kratovil

Practice Areas

Appellate

Business & Commercial

Litigation