Mark Malven, leader of Dykema's technology transactions practice, was quoted in ModernHealthcare.com on September 8, 2011. The article discusses increasing costs to hospitals, and its impact on a hospitals' decision to outsource. While many hospitals are outsourcing more and more functions, others are pushing back on the trend. Malven provided comment on outsourcing growth in hospital business functions, an expansion partly attributed to outsourcing companies tying their compensation to performance. Said Malven, "The compensation is based on performance, so it is an easier decision for the hospital."
