"5 Things I Wish Someone Told Me When I First Became An Attorney"

March 18, 2021

Authority Magazine

Michael Wippler, Los Angeles-based member of Dykema's Executive Board and the firm's Business Litigation practice group, was interviewed by Authority Magazine in the article, "Attorney Michael Wippler of Dykema: 5 Things I Wish Someone Told Me When I First Became An Attorney."

In the interview, Wippler mentions wishing he had been told to "Focus on balance. Law is demanding, and it is very important that you learn early on what it takes to be a good lawyer. However, to succeed in life, it is also important that you find time for yourself, your friends, your loved ones, and your health. Treat your health and your loved ones like gold."

In addition to his five wishes, Wippler was also interviewed on topics including his backstory, the most interesting story of his career, those who have inspired him, advice for young lawyers-to-be, reforms he would like to make, and more.
